New York City Fails to Protect New Yorkers' PPP/PEC Rights Yet City Leaders Hand Over Nearly $1 BILLION Annually To the PPP/PEC Institutions with a Wink-and-a-Nod

BZ/NYZS-WCS is owned by DPR. However, it is the Cultural Institutions Unit [CIG] of New York City's Department of Cultural Affairs [DCA] that oversees its operations, including funding for BZ/NYZS-WCS's capital and expense budgets, as well as for the other 33 CIGs members. Fourteen of the 17 PPP/PEC institutions are members of CIGs. BZ/NYZS-WCS is a CIGs member. Examples of New York City's failed oversight is reported in LIST OF REFERENCES – AMNH Section E. 10. to 14. below.

The Facts of the PPP	The Failure of DCA's Oversight
See: DCA's "Procedures Manual" [2005].	Clearly DCA cannot perform proper due diligence without connecting the terms of
DCA describes City's relationship with the PEC institutions at p. 7:	the PEC institutions' contracts, policies and practices, to the provisions of State laws. Yet,
"The history of the public-private partnership between the City and the Institutions dates back to 1869, when State legislation authorized the City to construct a facility for the new American Museum of Natural History. The same legislation provided for use of that City-owned facility by the	[1] DCA acts in disregard to the provisions of State legislation when stating in the "Admission Fees and Tickets Prices" section of its "Procedures Manual":
private nonprofit organization that was formed in order to acquire the collection and oversee the presentation of exhibits and programs.  State legislation authorized the City's relationship with many of the older Institutions" [emphasis added]	"In order to demonstrate commitment to its public service mandate, the Institution should maintain fee and ticket prices that are accessible to a broad spectrum of New York City's population. Institutions should provide free or reduced-price programming to the public on a periodic basis." [emphasis added] [p. 15].
	[2] DCA expects PEC institutions to produce only copies of "operating agreements, licenses, or other contracts with the City " [see VII.B.5, p. 37].
	[3] After denying FA's initial FOIL request stating that it "generally" does not retain or refer to State documents, many of DCA's nearly 3,000 pages ultimately produced were copies of State laws pertaining to the structure of the PPP.

New Yorkers subsidize the PEC institutions in an amount approximating $1 BILLION annually, yet DCA's "Procedures Manual" is silent on the PEC's mandate to provide free admission.
